FLOOR DEBATE

April 10, 2006      LB 745

SENATOR JANSSEN: (Laugh) No, not necessarily.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: But you do hear me now, right?

SENATOR JANSSEN: Oh, I hear you loud and clear now.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Okay. Now we were talking about the cost of garments for jockeys,...

SENATOR JANSSEN: Uh-huh.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...because we may as well talk about that as anything. They want to stay here and stay on this bill.

SENATOR JANSSEN: Absolutely.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: All right. At which store would a jockey go to, to purchase clothes, and would he purchase them in the adult department or the children's department?

SENATOR JANSSEN: I would imagine they would purchase them at the adult department, because most good clothing stores would have the tailors employed...

SENATOR CUDABACK: One minute.

SENATOR JANSSEN: ...that could cut that suit down to fit that particular individual.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: And there would be less material left than what they cut off, wouldn't you agree, probably?

SENATOR JANSSEN: Well, if they got the smallest size available and they only took about four inches off the pants and tucked in the back of the jacket, and probably shortened up the waist size, I doubt if there'd be too much left that would be spoiled.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: And so we'd get some taxes on the clothing he'd buy and the taxes he'd pay on a car, and if we didn't get those taxes, it wouldn't really hurt the state whether he was
